"Wow, that was close!" "One false step and that could have been a serious injury." We are collecting reports of "close calls" volunteers experienced while working at the disaster site. While you were working today, did you ever feel like you were in danger? Share your experiences with us and help prevent accidents before they happen.

More Volunteers are WELCOMED!!

There are some fears about joining Magokoro Net. These are some examples:

Q: What is volunteers' accommodation like?

A: A gym in Tono City located 50km away from seacoast disaster areas house volunteers.

Q: I don't have any transportation.

A: Transportation by bus is available to and from the disaster area everyday.

Q: Are shops open near the accommodation?

A: Convenience store, super market, restaurants are open within walking distance.

Volunteer works include taking out of mud and sludge, cooking for refugees, sorting relief goods, preparation for charities and volunteer supporting activities.

(new comer registration, clean-up of accommodation, etc.)

Feel free to call us at Magokoro Net (0198-62-1001) if you are interested in our volunteer work!

Good News! JR East announced a discount ticket for Shinkansen (Half the price)

Female volunteers work hard at Inarishita warehouse

Inarishita is the place where disaster victims come to get relief goods delivered from throughout Japan and the world. Here volunteers work sorting, displaying and re-stocking items. They also help unload the trucks that arrive several times a day. Manual labor?? That, and much more! Many jobs benefit from a woman's touch, especially arranging household items, food, and baby + sanitary supplies. Our goal is to display goods neatly, attaching explanations when necessary, and quickly get them out to the disaster victims. If you have experience in retail, we could use your expertise!

Be careful of nails and glass
 During volunteer work there exists potential risk of injury. The report of today's work points:

- When a volunteer is clearing mud underneath of house floor, unrecovered broken glass is found.
- Nails often remain in house flooring

These hidden dangers are the cause of injuries, eventually leading to tetanus a lethal disease. Please double glove with a heavy-duty Type on the outer layer and use insole that prevents nails from penetrating shoe bottom.
